

Trucker Killed As Tractor-Trailer Goes Over Embankment

Didn't See
Barricade
At Detour

A 34-YEAR-old truck driver was killed almost instantly early yesterday morning when his tractor-trailer loaded with 20 tons of steel left the road and overturned near the intersection of Route 611 and the old highway north of Bartonville.

Stanley J. Douglas, Factoryville RD 1, was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Charles Rushmore, Monroe County coroner.

State police said the victim, who reportedly was married only three months ago, was traveling south on Route 611 and apparently did not see the barricade marking the detour there until the last minute.

Swings To Left
Swinging his loaded vehicle sharply to the left, Douglas made an effort to enter the temporary route, authorities said. However, the trailer-truck failed to negotiate the curve, and overturned as it plunged over a four-foot embankment.

It was more than an hour before workmen were able to extricate the driver from the cab of his battered truck.

State police said the victim's injuries included a broken neck, fractured ribs, toes and fingers.

Damage was estimated at some $1,000. The tractor was owned by James Miller, Scranton, police said.

Other Wrecks
The tragedy occurred at almost the identical spot where a Greyhound bus went off the highway and down an embankment Saturday night. The driver of the bus, loaded with 31 passengers, told police at that time that he did not see the barrier in time. Several other accidents have occurred at the same spot in recent weeks.

Traffic has been detoured since two bridges were washed out in the Aug. 18-19 flood. The detour takes traffic over old Route 611 around the washed-out area. No work has been done on the bridges for a number of weeks.

Car Skids; Five Drown

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 7 (AP)—A car skidded across an icy highway into the Minnesota River today and turned into a watery tomb for five Minneapolis women en route home from a dancing party.

The five, friends of long standing, drowned in the frigid waters after their car plunged down a 20-foot embankment.

A sixth occupant, Donna Mae Willis, 24, Minneapolis, fought free from the submerged car and was guided to safety by four St. Paul youths who were first to arrive at the scene.

Dead are Margaret Miskowicz, 20; her sister, Delores, 28; Ruth Ann Pukrabek, 21; Carol Ann Krasick, 21, and Ann Mairs 26, owner of the car.

Record Number Of Persons Held Jobs In October

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Nearly 65 1/2 million Americans had jobs in October, the highest level of employment ever reached for that month, the government reported today.

However, the report said, a big influx of housewives and other new jobseekers—brought into the labor market by the availability of jobs in the present record-breaking surge of economic activity—held the level of unemployment nearly unchanged, at 2,131,000. This was only 18,000 less than the September total and contrasted with the usual October dip in unemployment of approximately 10 per cent.

The monthly report, by the Commerce and Labor departments, said overtime work at factories went up, and average factory payrolls increased to $78.69 a week. This was a new peak nearly $6.50 more than the average factory pay envelope contained a year earlier.

Couple Killed By Coal Fumes

ONEONTA, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—The director of a state poultry laboratory and his wife were found dead today in their home here. An autopsy disclosed they had been asphyxiated.

The 2-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter S. Packer was found alive and sobbing beside her mother's body.

Dr. John G. Clemmer, a pathologist summoned from Albany to aid in the investigation, said the parents probably were overcome by coal gas. The house had a coal furnace.

Ike To Leave Hospital Friday; Must Wait Until February For Decision On Second Term

DENVER, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower will leave the hospital for Washington Friday—but two of his doctors said today it will be "late January or February" before he can decide on trying for a second term.

Dr. Paul Dudley White and Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder told a news conference Eisenhower's mending heart must be "exposed to considerably more strain" before the President can decide on his "physical future and whole life."

May Have Decided
That did not rule out the possibility that Eisenhower already may have made up his mind on seeking or foregoing another four years in the White House. But White and Snyder said the President had given them no inkling on that.

White, the eminent Boston heart specialist, Snyder, Eisenhower's personal physician, and other doctors who have been attending the President since his Sept. 24 heart attack appeared at the news conference after thorough, lengthy examinations of the chief executive yesterday and today.

However hazy the political future might be, White said that he had "only good news again" on Eisenhower's physical condition at this point. And he added:

Arrive In Afternoon
"We have all, myself included, decided that Friday, in the morning, Nov. 11, will be the time for his takeoff here. So he will arrive in Washington in the afternoon."

Then, he said, the President plans to go on to his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., next Monday to celebrate Mrs. Eisenhower's 50th birthday.

To a question whether he would run again if he "were in the President's shoes," White replied that, "I haven't enough information yet."

"I would want to know how I would face the problems of the next few months," he said. "I might have made up my mind already."

"Do you think he has?" a reporter inquired.

May Recover Sufficiently
"I don't know," White answered. In response to a similar question, Snyder replied:

"He hasn't voiced it to me. I haven't heard him voice it to anyone."

At one point White gave a measure of support to the idea that Eisenhower may recover sufficiently to feel physically able to seek a second term. At another, he dashed a bit of cold water on it.

Supreme Court Declares Civilians Can't Be Court Martialed For Crimes In Service

By Karl R. Bauman
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Ex-servicemen cannot be subjected to military trial for crimes committed while in service, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 6-3 vote, the court struck down a key provision of the 1950 Uniform Code of Military Justice. It permitted the armed forces to put civilians back into uniform and court-martial them for serious crimes occurring before their discharge.

Toth Goes Free
The ruling, with potential implications to millions, specifically applied to Robert W. Toth of Pittsburgh. As a result, the Air Force cannot bring Toth, an honorably discharged veteran, to trial for the slaying of a South Korean civilian.

The decision was expected to have a direct bearing on the fate of three turncoat GIs arrested at San Francisco last July 29 under the code of military justice. The trio—Ordo G. Bell of Hillsboro, Miss., William A. Cowart of Dalton, Ga., and Lewis W. Griggs of

Wirths Lends Support To Victim's Wife

MINEOLA, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—A prowler admitted today he was blundering noisily atop Mrs. Ann Woodward's bedroom roof at the very moment she shot her husband to death. She had blamed a strange noise for her panicky gunfire.

The prowler, Paul W. Wirths, was quoted by police as saying he broke a tree branch, wrestled noisily with a door and dropped a loaded shotgun over Mrs. Woodward's bedroom early on the morning of Oct. 30.

His revised story appeared to support Mrs. Woodward's claim that a noise in the night led to the accidental shooting of 35-year-old William Woodward Jr., multimillionaire owner of the great race horse Nashua.

Sounded Like Cannon
Detective Inspector Stuyvesant Pinnell quoted Wirths as saying he heard the roar of Mrs. Woodward's shotgun. The 23-year-old German refugee added:

"It sounded like a cannon. I didn't wait. I got the hell out of there."

Mrs. Woodward said her nerves were on edge because of her "fearful dread" that the prowler would return and invade her home. He already had broken into a swimming pool cabana and the six-car garage on the Woodwards' 60-acre Oyster Bay, N. Y., estate.

The beautiful 39-year-old blonde told police she fired blindly into a darkened hallway outside her bedroom when she awakened in the night and heard a noise. She had taken a loaded shotgun to the bedroom with her when she retired.

Woodward was standing nude and unarmed in the door of his own bedroom, directly across the hallway from his wife. One charge from the shotgun caught him in the head and killed him.

Still In Hospital
Mrs. Woodward has been confined to Doctors Hospital in New York since the shooting, under treatment for shock and hysteria. Her doctor said she should be able to leave before the end of the week.

Meanwhile, the filing of Woodward's will was put off until Mrs. Woodward's release. It was to have been filed today. Under state law, she is entitled to at least one third of Woodward's estimated 10-million-dollar estate. Their two sons, 11 and 7, also are expected to share in the fortune.

Police claim to have found nothing to contradict Mrs. Woodward's story that she shot her husband by accident. However, an investigation still is continuing and a grand jury is expected to make a final decision on whether or not it was an accident.

Wirths was arrested a week ago, two days after the shooting. At the time, police said he readily admitted prowling the Woodward estate but denied he was anywhere in the immediate vicinity at the time of the shooting.

Soviets Hint New Offers On Key Issues

GENEVA, Nov. 7 (AP)—New Soviet offers on German unification and disarmament were hinted by Russian officials here tonight as the Big Four powers reached virtual agreement to hold another conference in Geneva next spring.

The present slow-moving foreign ministers' parley—recessed five out of 12 days—will resume tomorrow when Russia's V. M. Molotov flies back from consultations in Moscow. The only uncertainty about the next conference apparently is the date—March or April.

Eden Urges Precautions Against Spies

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—To guard against another Burgess-Maclean case, Prime Minister Eden asked Parliament today to approve a study of Britain's antispies precautions by a group of elder statesmen.

The Prime Minister made the bid in winding up a House of Commons debate on the 1951 defection to the Communists of diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean—described by Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan as one of the most painful stories in the nation's history.

Admitting the government had been "a bit laggard" in recognizing the danger in the case, Eden said: "We should examine . . . the security measures now applied in the public service and also consider whether any further precautions can properly be taken to reduce the risk of treachery."

Eden's call came only a few hours after Macmillan turned down an opposition Laborite demand for a judicial inquiry and an all-party investigation of the way the Foreign Office selected and promoted its men. But members of the Prime Minister's own Conservative party joined with the opposition in demanding some kind of a probe.

Prisoner Holds Razor At Throat Of Social Worker

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (AP)—A prisoner at the Holmesburg jail held a razor blade at the throat of a social worker for more than two hours today in a desperate—but unsuccessful—plan to escape.

When the convict refused to heed the pleas of prison officials to release the hostage, a policeman shot him in the mouth—the bullet flying over the head of the helpless social worker, David Kaplan. The shot was fired through an opening in the cell door no more than eight inches square.

The convict, Charles Savage, was taken to Philadelphia General Hospital. Doctors there said the bullet crashed through his mouth and lodged in the back of Savage's head but that he probably would live.

Wonders Of X-Ray Discovered 60 Years Ago Today By Prof. Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen

By Leonard J. Snyder, Central Press Assoc.
Correspondent
WASHINGTON — A press dispatch from Denver reporting on President Eisenhower's hospital progress said:

"A careful examination, backed by cardiogram tracings of the President's heart action and an X-ray photograph of the chest showed no change to indicate complications." The X-ray showed that his heart had not been enlarged as the result of his coronary thrombosis Sept. 24."

Similarly, across the nation and around the world today, other victims of numerous ailments and maladies are being subjected to the wonders of the X-ray. Yet, until 60 years ago this month, no one in the world had found a way for physicians actually to study the internal organs of the human body without subjecting the patient to the least discomfort or danger.

Modern Miracle November marks the birth of the X-ray, the modern day miracle which has opened the door for a new era in the progress of medicine.

It was Nov. 8, 1895, just two years after the Chicago World's Fair, a couple of years before Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, three years before the Maine was blown up in Havana's harbor, that Prof. Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen made history and turned the medical clocks a century ahead.

According to papers and records made available to the American College of Radiology in Chicago, Roentgen had been working with unusual vigor for weeks prior to the historic Nov. 8, 1895.

Then, that evening, the obscure physicist who taught at Bavaria's University of Wurzburg led his wife Bertha to his basement home laboratory and demonstrated a mysterious ray he had produced which could pass through solid objects as though they were clear glass.

No Accident
Roentgen's miracle was no accident. He knew he was on the trail of a new ray produced by electric energies liberated in an electrically charged tube from which all the air had been pumped out. Other physicists had been experimenting with similar tubes to study the curious effects.

It was Roentgen, however, who became interested in the properties of the ray itself and discovered that it acted like ordinary adies, in operation at Walter Reed General hospital in Washington.

light with the strange and important difference that it passed completely through solid objects which were opaque to ordinary light.

During the next few weeks after he demonstrated his new found mystery to his wife, Roentgen spent even more time in his lab.
Frau Roentgen wrote to a cousin in Indianapolis about this time telling her of the discovery and of how her husband seldom left his laboratory during those feverish days, even to eat.

Recorded Shadows
His experiments led Roentgen to prepare a sensitized plate which recorded the shadows produced by the X-ray and the first radiograph ever produced was of his wife's hand, showing the bones which blocked out some of the rays and were cast as shadows on the plate.

It was not until after the Christmas holidays that Roentgen made his first official report to a scientific body when he presented a paper "On a New Kind of Ray" at the University of Wurzburg. It was there that the motion was made that the ray, which Roent-gen labeled the "X" or unknown ray, should henceforth be called the "Roentgen Ray."

All kinds of fantastic stories began to circulate concerning the nature and capabilities of the X-ray. Many people who read the early press reports got the idea that Roentgen had discovered a kind of glass which, used in spectacles, could enable the wearer to see right through doors, walls and clothing.

Would Shock Women
One London firm, realizing that British women would be shocked at the mere thought of this, even went so far as to advertise "X-ray proof underclothing."

Missioner Conducting Services

PREACHING Mission services are being conducted in St. John's Lutheran Church with Rev. Dr.
C. F. Brobst as the guest preacher.

On Sunday morning the church was crowded when Dr. Brobst presented the keynote message for the series of services. He indicated that a decision must be made in the matter of religion as well as in every other field of life. He emphasized that if one would live a good life, he must seek first the Kingdom of God and continue to enthroned Christ upon the heart.

Before another large congregation on Sunday night, Dr. Brobst emphasized the fact that Christ stands at the door and knocks for admittance so that He may provide the good life that is essential. Last night the missioner presented the how heavy those undergarments were because Roentgen had already learned that only lead, the heaviest of metals, would block the passage of X-rays.

On Feb. 19, the New Jersey legislature debated a bill which was introduced to prohibit the use of X-rays in opera glasses.

It was not too long after, however, that the public learned that the X-ray was not a plaything, but that it could be utilized only for the production of images upon a fluorescent screen or a sensitized film.

And so the world eventually learned that the X-ray would be used by men of science, not to peer through an individual, but to cast shadows upon a film which required an expert knowledge of anatomy and pathology to interpret.

Five Dreher Ave. Residents Sue Gas Company For $113,482

Action Filed As Result Of Explosion

A SUIT ASKING $113,482.73 in damages was filed yesterday against Citizens Gas Co. by five Dreher Ave. residents.

The complaint is an outgrowth of an explosion on Feb. 9 this year at 1104 Dreher Ave. There are four causes of action listed in the suit, each filed by a different party or parties.

Plaintiffs in the action are the following:

Fred A. Fetherman, 1109 W. Main St., owner of the house in which the explosion occurred. Fetherman asks damages totaling $41,967.80.

Sheldon V. and Violet J. Newell, husband and wife, of 1111 Dreher Ave., who live next door to the site of the explosion. Mr. and Mrs. Newell claim damages of $27,362.43.

Nettie E. Kitchen, 1078 Dreher Ave., who also lives next door to the house in which the explosion occurred. Mrs. Kitchen asks an award of $43,694.50 in damages.

James Kitchen, described in the suit as a tenant in Mrs. Kitchen's home at the time of the explosion, asks award of $458 for loss of personal property.

Attorney for the plaintiffs is Forrest Mervine, Stroudsburg. The legal firm of Bialkowski and Bialkowski, Scranton, is associate legal counsel for plaintiffs.

Service of the suit on the company was carried out yesterday afternoon by the sheriff's office.

Claims Gas Escaped

In the first cause of action, Fetherman's complaint alleges that "on the said 9th day of February, 1955, and for some time prior thereto, gas escaped from the defendant's main and its connections . . . at or near the premises of the plaintiff . . . found its way and accumulated in the cellar of the dwelling of the said Fred A. Fetherman, plaintiff."

"At about 2:30 p. m. of that day, the gas which had escaped from the defendant's main and accumulated in the cellar . . . exploded," the complaint alleges.

As a result of the explosion, the suit claims that the Fetherman house was "completely destroyed, causing a loss . . . of $28,000." Other damages listed in the first action are: Destruction of "sidewalks, retaining walls, lawn, trees, shrubbery, flowers, etc., located on said premises" at a loss of $3,500; "household furniture, furnishings, appliances" and other goods "completely destroyed" at a loss of $8,967.80.

Value Reduced

In addition, the action says, a garage located on the Fetherman property was "moved from its foundation" and damaged so that $500 will be required for repairs. Value of the buildings and land was lowered from $35,000 to $3,000 as a result of the explosion, the action contends.

Rental value prior to the explosion was $100 a month, the suit alleges. Losses of revenue since the time of the explosion have been $600 and will be $600 additional before buildings can be restored, the suit claims.

The first cause of action claims and alleges that "the explosion and consequent fire were caused solely by the carelessness and negligence of the defendant" in 14 listed ways.

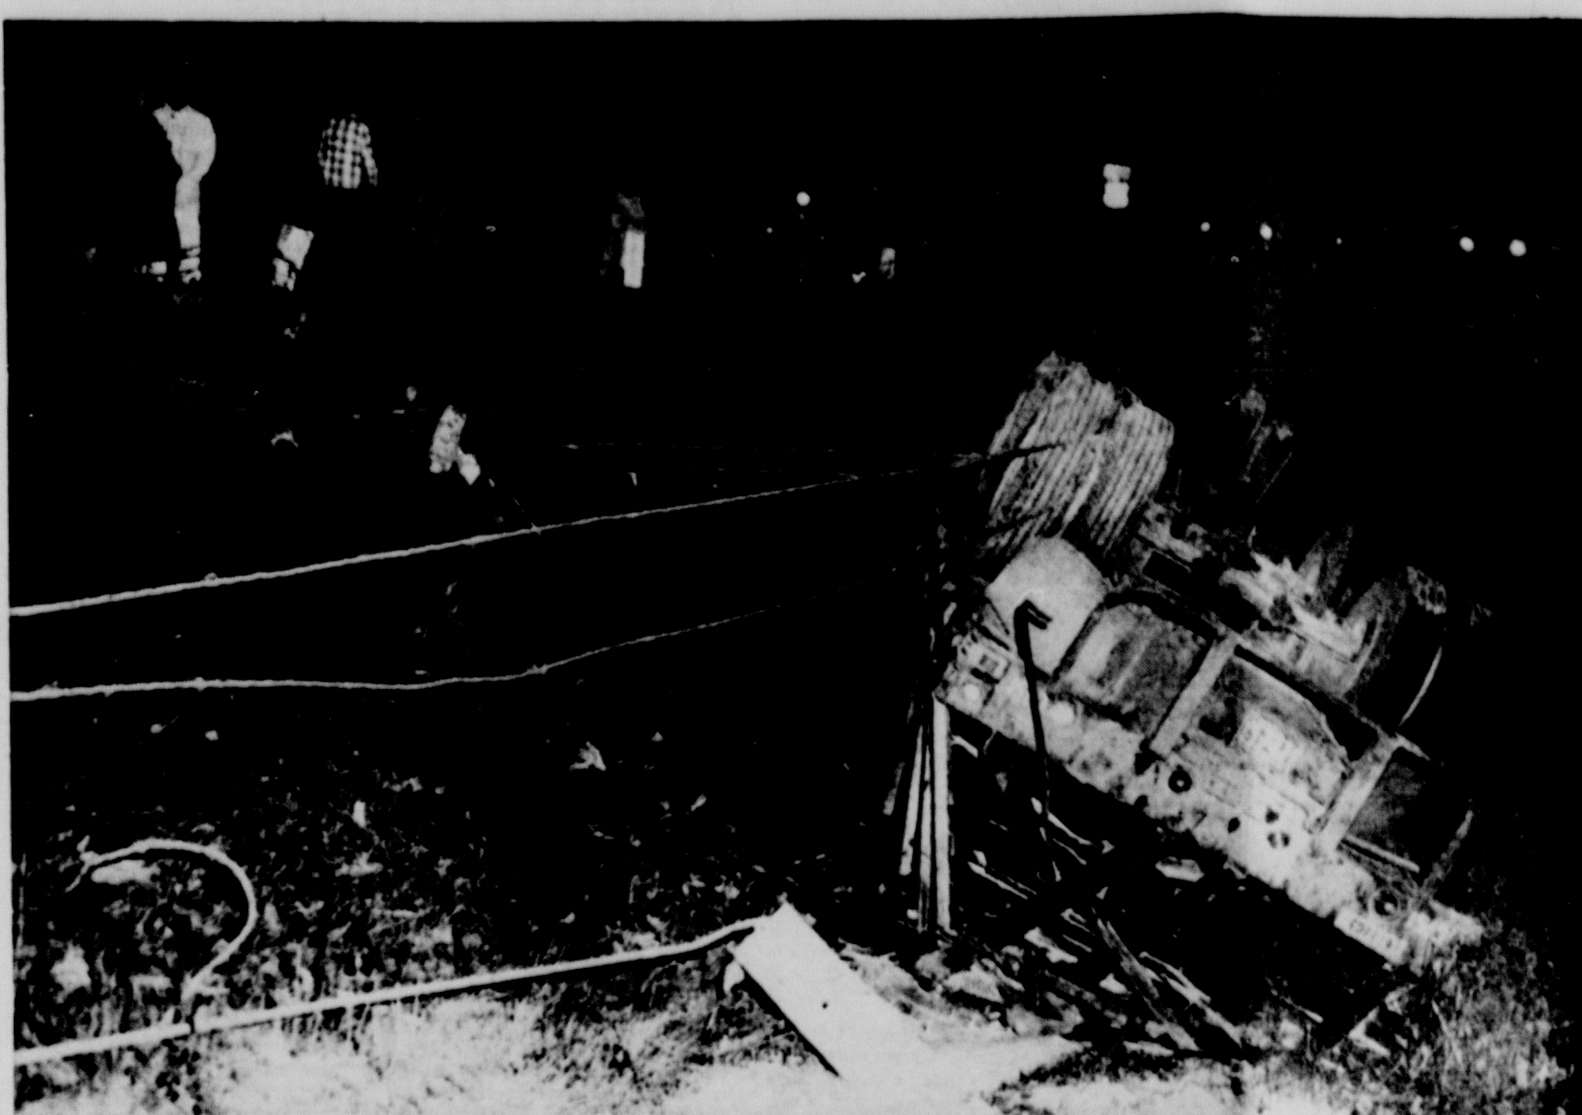

In the second cause of action the Newells repeat the major allegations contained in the Fetherman action. In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Newell set forth the following account-and-alleges:

That the Newells were owners of a lot adjacent to the Fetherman home and to the east. That the lot had been improved with a two-story frame home and two one-story double garages in the rear.

Newells List Damages
That the explosion caused damages to the buildings totaling $10,000; household furnishings were damaged to the extent of $5,262.43; garages were damaged so that $300 was necessary to repair them; permanent injury to buildings, land and improvements were $10,000.

In her action, Mrs. Kitchen sets forth that her home lies west and adjacent to the Fetherman property and that it was used as a residence for her, a tourist's home and an apartment occupied by James Kitchen, fifth plaintiff in the suit.

"As a result of said explosion and fire . . . the . . . house was shaken from its foundation, caught on fire and was burned, the windows were blown out, the studding and rafters were broken and twisted, the floors and stairway were twisted out of shape, bent and damaged, the walls and chimney were shaken loose, forced out of line and bent and twisted, the electric wiring was torn loose, the plumbing, heating and spouting were wrecked, the entire building was broken down and displaced, the roof was damaged and destroyed, the cellar walls and basement were cracked, damaged and broken and the said dwelling house was otherwise bent and broken, so that the plaintiff will be obliged to lay out and expend for labor and materials to repair the same, the sum of $17,000."

Injuries Alleged

In addition to damages claimed to household goods, property and other goods, the action alleges: "And this plaintiff at the time of said explosion was in the kitchen of her home, the door of said kitchen was blown with great force and violence against her back, mirrors, shelves and other debris and materials were jarred loose from the walls and fell against her crushing her in a mass of debris, whereby she was knocked and jostled about."

The suit alleges that Mrs. Kitchen "sustained serious and permanent external and internal injuries, she was cut, bruised and injured about the head, face, body and limbs. She suffered large contusions of the head, back and hips, her back and neck were wrenched and twisted, she suffered a concussion and a severe shock to her nervous system resulting in headaches, backaches, and nervous disorders as a result of which she has been rendered sick, sore, lame and disordered."

The gas company is allowed 20 days in which to answer the suit. The complaint was filed yesterday in Monroe County Court and in the office of the prothonotary and clerk of courts.

Bangor Man Files Complaint To Restrain Borough Council

BANGOR—Borough Council last night received notification that a complaint in equity is being filed against the borough by Frank Ditchett, a taxpayer.

Council President John Correll read a letter from Phillip Ruggiero, a Bangor attorney, stating that application was made Nov. 7 in Northampton County Court for a preliminary injunction to restrain members of the council from re-advertising for bids for pea and barley coal.

Ruggiero noted that bids have already been received which indicate that Hower & Son is the successful low bidder.

Reads Complaint

J. Lawrence Davis, borough solicitor, later read the complaint to the council. It stated that the borough advertised for fuel oil and coal at its September meeting, and at the October meeting, the complaint says, the council attempted to award the contracts to persons other than the low bidders.

Hower & Son was low bidder on the coal and Carl Tollino submitted a low estimate on the oil.

The council, at a meeting later in the month, rescinded its action of awarding the contracts, but also re-advertised for bids, the complaint says, which was an unwarranted cost and expenditure of the taxpayers' money.

The complaint asks for an injunction against re-advertising for bids, an injunction against awarding new contracts, and an order directing the borough to award the contracts to Hower & Son and Carl Tollino.

Referred To Counsel

Council placed the matter in the hands of the borough solicitor. Award of the contracts, based on the second set of bids, will be postponed until after the court decides in the case.

In other action, the council elected Ralph Hess to the park board.

Pfc. Heller Dies While On Furlough

PFC. ROBERT M. HELLER, 22, died at his home in Shawnee-on-Delaware yesterday at 5:15 a.m. Dr. Marshall Metzgar, the attending physician, said that cause of death was the collapse of a lung.

Pfc. Heller arrived home on furlough Friday from Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., where he was stationed with the U. S. Army in the 416th Ordnance Co.

He entered the service on May 12, 1954. He was a 1952 graduate of East Stroudsburg High School, later attending the Penn State Institute in Allentown. He was a member of Shawnee Presbyterian Church.

Leaves Parents

Surviving are his parents, Clyde and Hazel Coss Heller of Shawnee; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Matilda Coss, also of Shawnee. He had lived in that village all his life.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2:30 p.m. at Shawnee Presbyterian Church. Rev. Frank Wingerter will officiate. Interment will be made in Shawnee Cemetery. Friends may call at the Lanterman funeral home Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Driver Hurt In Accident While Passing

FOUR STITCHES were required to close a gash over the eye of a 25-year-old motorist whose car went into a skid, ran off the road and into a culvert on Route 12 between Sciota and Saylorsburg at 12:45 p.m. yesterday.

Dr. John J. Martucci, Brodheads-ville, administered emergency treatment to Waldfried Koerberlein, now living in East Stroudsburg RD1. The motorist was not hospitalized. State police said the mishap occurred as Koerberlein was attempting to pass a truck and went into a skid.

Meanwhile, Preston T. Arndt, Danielsville, escaped injury yesterday afternoon although the roof of his 1953 sedan was crushed when it overturned on Legislative Route 13038 between Little Gap and Danielsville.

State police said the car failed to negotiate a curve and went over an embankment near the foot of Little Gap Mountain.

Will Of The People Will Be Carried Out Only If Heavy Vote Is Cast Today

Today is Election Day — the day of the so-called "off-year" election when voters select the men and women who will serve them in county and community offices for the next four years.

All too often this election is taken for granted by the vast majority of voters. As a result, we find candidates slipping into important local offices on a mere handful of votes—only a slim minority of the total electorate.

Actually what has taken place is this: The independent-thinking voter, who frequently crosses party lines to cast his ballot for the person he feels best qualified for the office, has sat at home content in the belief that one more vote will not matter much.

This means that the votes cast represent little more than the total number of persons who are dependent upon one political party or the other for their jobs—the people who make politics their livelihood.

Every office to be filled today is important to all of us as citizens and taxpayers. The candidates are well known to the voters. The issues have been stated, not too clearly in all cases, but nevertheless definite enough that every election can cast an intelligent ballot for or against each and every candidate.

The free, American ballot is one of our most cherished privileges. Yet it is more than just that. It is every citizen's duty to cast his or her vote at all elections. Only by doing so can we hope to reach the political Utopia whereby only the best-fitted candidates are placed in office.

Don't neglect to vote today. The polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Jim Hagerty, Presidential Press Secretary Honest With Newspapers

We've got to add another note to the paean of praise which has gone up in recent weeks for Jim Hagerty, the Presidential Press Secretary.

Some newsmen asked Mr. Hagerty whether Ike had been given any whisky since his illness. Mr. Hagerty said he would have to check with the doctors. He did, and learned the President had asked for and received one Scotch and soda before dinner.

And was this for medicinal purposes, asked another newsmen—obviously giving Jim a great big out for the tee-total vote.

"No," snapped Hagerty, "the President wanted it."

Read it anyway you care to, but in our book Jim Hagerty will go down as the secretary who always leveled with the press.

Request For Postal Rate Increase Required To Make Up Big Deficit

The President will ask Congress to increase postage rates next year. Postmaster General Summerfield disclosed following their conference at Denver.

Congress found time last year to give postal employees a raise — which they deserved—but didn't get around to raising the money to pay for it. So the Post Office Department continues to operate at a deficit, the taxpayers paying the difference.

People who use the mails ought to pay for the service. They still would be getting a bargain.

George Sokolsky Says...

Professionals Of Both Parties Reaching Conclusion Ike Will Seek Second Term

The professionals of both parties are rapidly reaching the conclusion that President Eisenhower will run for a second term. This forces them to revise their earlier plans, because professional politicians cannot afford to wait until the doctors and the Eisenhower family and the President have reached decisions. Professionals have deals to make.

From the Republican standpoint, it means that the long pre-convention fight for the first place is practically over. There is bound to be something of a struggle for the second place, but the President will name the Vice-Presidential candidate and it is likely to be Richard Nixon. The Republican campaign probably will be led by Nixon, with members of the Cabinet participating. It is not believed that President Eisenhower will go through the grind of the canvass.

The Democrats exhibit unexpected confidence that they might win despite the renomination of President Eisenhower. Their most serious problem will be to keep the Solid South together. In 1952, Eisenhower carried four Southern states, Tennessee, Virginia, Florida and Texas. This is the leading argument which the anti-Stevenson Democrats use against him. They make the point that to win, they have to keep the Solid South. Some of the Northern professional Democrats are puzzled by what appears to be Stevenson strength in the South, but they took courage from Senator Richard B. Russell's proclamation for Governor Frank Lausche of Ohio. Lausche refuses to take any steps to assist his candidacy and it has thus far not been possible to get a declaration from him. Prior to his attendance at the Ohio Society Dinner in New York on October 24, 1955, there were speculative reports that he was coming to this city to confer with Carmine DeSapio, the New York Democratic leader. I have checked most carefully and can say, without the slightest fear of error, that they have not met by arrangement or casually to this date. I have also checked Republican sentiment and estimate that some important Republican leaders, particularly in New York, would favor Lausche over any candidate in either party; others would favor him over all except Eisenhower.

The Democratic professionals believe that if they can hold the Solid South, they can win because of New York and Michigan which they feel are sure. The New York situation is particularly dangerous for the Republicans. Thomas E. Dewey, while Governor, ruled the organization with an iron hand. But after he ceased to be Governor, the organization fell apart. A new leadership needs to arise. The interim power is the Attorney-General, Jacob Javits, who cannot bring the contending factions together.

For instance, Queens County, which is the only effective Republican county in New York City, is dominated by McCarthyites who are more loyal to the Wisconsin Senator today than ever before. They will not follow Javits' lead.

Despite all protestations to the contrary, the State Department brush-off for arms for Israel is a paramount factor in New York State in which race, religion, color and prior nationality are politically significant. While many who believe that such divisions should not exist prefer to say that they do not exist, the professionals know that such factors are paramount not only here but in several other states and they reach their decisions accordingly. A pro-Egypt policy will make no votes for Republicans in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut or Massachusetts and when one talks to professional politicians, he hears much on the subject.

The weakness of the Democrats is their internal fight over A.D.A. and Stevenson. In the end, Governor Averell Harriman will have the New York Democratic delegation. Neither he nor Carmine DeSapio, the Democratic leader, will be for Stevenson unless he is inevitable. California is far away and few understand its politics, which to other Americans seem less partisan than is usual. Within the Republican Party, among professionals, Senator William Knowlton stands out as a leader. The Taft element in the Party would prefer Knowlton to any other candidate. If Eisenhower runs, there will be no other candidate. It is doubtful if Eisenhower will take anyone but Nixon for Vice President. The Democratic Party in California seems to be in a turmoil over A.D.A. Democrats outside of California do not now count on that state, which has the second largest electoral vote in the country.

and penitence and of no importance. "And will everything turn out as it does in fairy stories?" she asked. "Will I marry the man I love?"

"Remember I'm giving you the Cinderella tale in reverse," warned the godmother. "There may still be a clock at midnight to spoil everything."

Now the clock had struck and the princess let her hand slip from that of her hero. Her man, too, knew the spell was over and that his princess must return to the life of "those who have everything." "I know," he said. "It sometimes turns out this way. The fairy books lack authenticity."

The fairy godmother, back at headquarters, picked up a newspaper tossed at her feet by a disgruntled Aesop, read the statement issued by the young princess in the time of heart-break, and flung her magic wand into a rubbish basket with a contemptuous, "You and your dippy-doodle powers! They ain't what they're cracked up to be!" But she added, "Still, in these days of contempt for traditions, rebellion against rules and impatience with duty that little princess looks extra wonderful."

The Once Over —by H. I. Phillips

Fairy Tale Switch

The clock was striking twelve. The princess, who had been transformed for an hour into a girl like any other girl, shuddered in her partner's arms and stopped dancing. The spell had ended. Now she must close her eyes on romance, love and happiness as it comes to most people. For a glorious moment the princess, hemmed in by tradition and custom, had known freedom through the fairy godmother who had come to her in the great palace, touched her shoulder and said, "You are unhappy, child. What do you desire most?" "I am in love and I would marry the man of my choice," said the princess.

"For a princess that is a large order," smiled the fairy godmother. "And in your case there are special difficulties. Traditions of state and church, and royal obligation, taken together with your position of eminence, make it tough. "But you're a fairy godmother! Can't you do something?" asked the princess.

"I'm better in the Cinderella routine. This is quite a switch," said the fairy godmother. "But I can try."

Nothing Would Help More Than Much Better Speeches

Well, I see that the mixed hopes and fears I expressed some time ago have been realized already. Somebody has rigged up an adaptation of the TV mechanical prompter for flustered speakers—for use on run-of-the-mine speeches, delivered live to live audiences.

It costs $495, plus tax. Also plus $250 for a machine to type the speech in large letters on a roll of paper. Presumably plus tax on THAT.

I fear we shall have to rely on mass production to reduce the price of the outfit substantially before it will be much of a boon to us ordinary speech listeners. The speaker who gives us the most trouble, and who would benefit most from such a mechanical crutch, hasn't got $745, let alone the taxes.

Chances are he came mainly for the free dinner. I am against making the racket any easier for such shameless opportunists.

No doubt the after-dinner speaker who could easily afford to buy a $745 device to remind him of what he meant to say would have something to say that would be worth hearing. But he also would probably know what it was, without prompting.

On balance, I suppose enabling the average speaker to read his speech from a rolling manuscript would improve the status of speech listeners. At least it would get his nose up off the lectern and his voice out where you could hear what he was reading. (The only thing worse than a mediocre speech you can hear is one you can't quite hear.)

One could wish, though, that inventive genius were focused on the development of more direct ways of improving the lot of audiences. An innovation that would be gratefully received might be a prompter that would flash a light or ring a gong whenever the speaker came to a passage that really merited close attention.

I have no specific notion as to how such an admirable contraption might be devised, but certainly it offers a splendid challenge to humanitarian tinkers.

When you get right down to the nub of the matter, however, nothing would help both speakers and audiences more than better speeches.

To this end the inventors might well consider a machine that would tell the speaker not what he was thinking when he composed his speech but what the audience is thinking as he delivers it. Sort of a listener's mind tap.

Suppose the speaker could look at a screen in front of him and note such unvoiced comments as: "Holy mackerel! When is this guy going to get to the point?" or "This is the fourth speaker to use that joke on us this month" or "Why doesn't he shut up and sit down?"

Admittedly that would be disconcerting and he might do poorly that time. But it might help him do better next time.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Governor "Soapy" Williams of Michigan tells of an evening in Lansing when a gent very much under the influence eluded the guards and begged, "Hey, Guv, what time ya got?"

"It's exactly 9:30 p.m.," the "Guv" told him. "I must be going nuts," wailed the imbibor. "All day long I keep getting different answers!"

A city man bought a country estate and also an ornate weather vane to put on top of the barn. It was much too elaborate for the flimsy structure, however, and the man's wife brought it back for exchange.

"I'm afraid," she explained to the man who had fashioned it, "you'll have to give us something in a lighter vane."

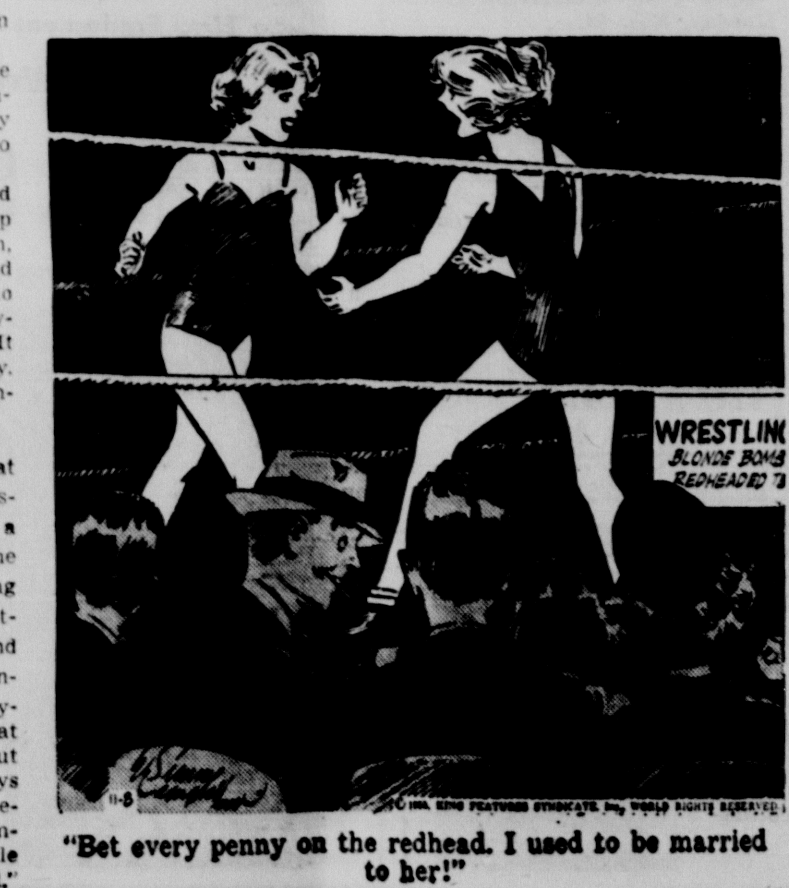

Have you heard about the man from outer space who changed saucers in mid-stream?

Robert S. Allen Reports

Atomic Plane Passes Reactor Test Stage

Washington, November 8—The fabulous drive to develop an atomic plane has scored another momentous advance.

The unique reactor that has been expressly constructed by General Electric for powering a nuclear plane, has satisfactorily passed its first "weight and shielding" tests.

These fateful experiments were airborne. They took place in a B-36 bomber flying high over the Fort Worth, Tex., area.

The reactor was housed in a specially-built oversized nose of the strategic bomber. The reactor, which has been "critical," that is in operation, for some time, functioned independently of the plane, which was powered by conventional engines.

The results of the first tests exceeded expectations. They were gratifyingly satisfactory in all aspects. The experimental equipment was subjected to a number of rigorous trials, and in every instance met maximum requirements, particularly as regards safety from deadly radiation.

On the basis of what has so far been ascertained, it may be possible to still further reduce the extent of the shielding.

Air Force, Navy, Atomic Energy Commission, General Electric and other authorities participated in these crucial experiments. More of them are slated. Their importance cannot be exaggerated.

An atomic plane is not possible until a reactor is available whose weight and safety make it practical for aircraft.

That's the crux of this fabulous project—on which the Air Force and Atomic Commission already have spent more than $200,000,000, and estimate the total cost will be at not less than $500,000,000.

They are now also very confident that the first atomic-powered plane will be in the air by 1958.

Hot Race—That historic aircraft may turn out to be a sea-plane.

The Navy is going into high gear to be the first with a nuclear-powered plane. It now has two of the world's foremost experts working full-time on this.

They are Admiral Hyman Rickover, who conceived and built, over considerable thwarting at the time, the first atomic submarine; and Dr. Lawrence H. Bateman, former head of the reactor division of the Atomic Commission.

They have the mission of developing an atomic seaplane as quickly as possible.

The Navy would like to get it by 1957.

Toward that end, a special "high priority" contract has been given the Convair division, at San Diego, Calif., of General Dynamics Corporation. This is the Navy's second contract of that kind. Some time ago, one was given to Glenn L. Martin Co., Md. The new contract was disclosed to leaders of the House Armed Services Committee by Assistant Navy Secretary James Smith, Jr. He told them, "It is directed specifically toward the early development of nuclear-powered seaplanes."

The Navy also has assigned Captain Norval Richardson, nuclear specialist in the Bureau of Aeronautics, to work closely with Air Force General Don Keirn, director of the atomic plane project being jointly financed by the Air Force and the Atomic Commission.

Note: Last August 26, this column disclosed that a unique reactor for an atomic plane had been built, and that these first "weight and shielding" tests were in the offing.

Full-Out—Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. M.), chairman of the Joint Atomic Commission, and Representative Melvin Price (D., Ill.) and Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), who have been in the forefront in backing the atomic plane project, are planning to seek a "crash budget" for it at the coming session of Congress. They want to double the existing $100,000,000 budget. . . . Atomic Commission scientists are saying privately an atomic-powered locomotive will be in operation before an atomic plane. They foresee a nuclear-powered locomotive by early 1957. . . . Russia has detonated 32 atomic and hydrogen weapons and devices, as against 63 U. S. explosions. One-third of the Soviets' tests have taken place in the last 12 months, indicating sinister progress the Reds are making. They are now conducting experiments the year around, and U. S. experts estimate the Russians have a stockpile of hundreds of nuclear weapons.

Long Overdue—The General Services Administration, long under fire, is definitely headed for a major housecleaning.

The White House is cracking down on the giant government buying agency.

The White House has ordered a sweeping purge of GSA, and the Budget Bureau is allocating $200,000 for this scouring job.

Administrator Edmund Mansure was bluntly told about it personally by Sherman Adams, top White House secretary. They had a three-hour unannounced conference in Adams' office in Denver. The latter made no bones of White House displeasure at the way things are going in GSA.

Mansure was directed to start the housecleaning by getting rid of certain regional officials.

Significance of this backstage investigation is that it is directly counter to Mansure's views. Several months ago, shortly before President Eisenhower's illness, he received two telegrams from Mansure arguing against a probe. He had been tipped off this was under consideration, and appealed to the President not to approve it on the ground the charges against GSA are unjustified.

Beeswax Helps Build Motor Cars

—by H. G. Heller

Production of cars and trucks calls for many strange ingredients before the "cake" is pulled from the paint-drying ovens.

Automotive purchasing agents are paid to worry about the supply of these materials—among which is walnut shells.

The shells, ground into particles one-thirty-second of an inch in diameter, are used as shot in blasting burrs of metal from castings.

Ground apricot pits, in another instance, help clean the armature cores of electric motors. Sulfur was once best-known for its use in matches. Today it turns up as an ingredient in cigarette lighters, as well as in springs, engines, bumpers, other steels, radios, heaters, plastics, and in rubber, especially in tires. Some 35 pounds is used in the average car.

Asphalt not only surfaces the roads many cars drive over, but serves as a sound deaver in body construction. Beeswax applied to bolt threads speeds the tightening of nuts. Corn syrup, among other uses, aids in electroplating many metal parts.

The automotive shopping list for non-production items—used in operation and maintenance of an auto plant—contains an even more striking assortment of necessities.

In a one-month period, buyers from one automotive plant have been called upon to examine and purchase: A cement mixer, loose-leaf binders, drugs, a fire engine, blackboards, mops, x-ray film, a locomotive (complete with track equipment), ladders, teletype forms, bicarbonate of soda, rubber gloves and muslin (plain and striped).

To twist an old phrase, what comes out must have gone in— and whether the input be beeswax or bicarbonate, it all comes out automobiles.

Club Women Endorsed As Candidates

The executive board of the Stroudsburg Woman's Club yesterday afternoon voted their unanimous approval of the endorsement of the candidacy of Mrs. Verna Kohn and Mrs. Rosemary McMahon, two club members who are running for public office, and urged all the members to vote today for the candidates of their choice.

At the board meeting plans were made for the meeting of the club to be held on Monday, November 14.

That the Woman's Club is a far-reaching organization was proven to Mrs. Harold C. Eaton who spent several days in a Woman's Club Rest Home receiving instructions while she was on the trip to Japan with her husband this summer.

Mrs. Eaton, a director of the Stroudsburg Woman's Club will give an illustrated slide lecture to the members at the meeting. These slides were taken with the Woman's Club in mind and will be of particular interest to them. Many are of Japanese floral arrangements.

She will also display articles made by the Japanese and presented to the Eatons as gifts. A club member will model clothing worn by a Japanese woman.

Board members present for the meeting were Mrs. Claude Leister, president; Mrs. Edward Hess, Mrs. Herbert Stoner, Mrs. Roy Peterson, Mrs. Harold Rinker, Mrs. Paul Lloyd, Mrs. Arthur Snee, Mrs. Nelson T. Beers, Mrs. Richard Altomose, Mrs. W. Grady Moore, Mrs. Ben I. Fansler, Mrs. A. A. Holbrook, Mrs. Van Yetter, Mrs. Henry Hefele, Mrs. Walter Caulfield, Mrs. Samuel O. Wells, Mrs. William A. Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

All right, so it's not too pleasant weather to go to the polls, but I'm depending on you to get the family there anyway. Don't feed them till they've voted—and you go too.

Actually, even if you vote the wrong way it's better than if you don't vote at all. The fewer the voters the more controlled an election becomes—controlled by behind-the-scenes small groups.

Your vote—being your own, can never be counted beforehand and no one can predict what you'll decide—which makes it a very important thing.

Particularly when it's for local office where every vote counts. As a matter of fact you use the life—the roads you use, the streets you travel, the places your children play, the library, the museum, the schools, your property and your protection—are all more closely involved in this election than in a national election.

It's been said over and over again, and said better, but never an election day comes round that I don't feel disturbed and worried that so many of you seem to care so little about what happens to you and your neighbor.

Church Bazaar Suggestions Are Listed

AP Newsfeatures
One of our major American fall institutions, along with football and hayrides, is the church or club bazaar. This is a favorite time of year for such events, since the children are back in school, women have more time to work on outside projects, and bazaar business usually is good because people are shopping for Christmas gifts.

If you are planning a bazaar, you probably know of the staggering amount of work a successful bazaar requires. Selection of chairmen and committees, assignment of duties, decisions regarding the location, time and type of bazaar, booth, price setting, entertainment, refreshments—a well-run bazaar is actually a small business, requiring the whole-hearted cooperation of every member of the group.

The needlework booth usually is one of the most popular booths at a bazaar, and one of the biggest money-makers. The bazaar chairman may wish to visit her local sewing center for advice on the needlework booth, and tips on the best-selling items.

The needlework chairmen should be careful to assign specific items to various members otherwise the needlework booth may contain dozens of pot-holders and no aprons, or vice versa. Also, a preliminary discussion of colors and fabrics is advisable, since the style and color sense of eager workers cannot always be depended on.

The 50-cent to $3.50 price range will prove most popular in the needlework booth. Remember to put large, clear price tags on every article. Remember, too, that buyers are looking for bargains, and expect to get good quality for their money.

Here are some suggestions on the most popular articles for a sewing booth. Aprons, of course, are all-time favorites, and many communities have a special apron booth at a big bazaar. Mother-daughter combinations are popular, as are party aprons for such special occasions as Valentine's Day and Christmas. Barbecue aprons are good sellers, appealing to the men. A child's play apron, with pockets for scissors, crayon, pad of paper and so on, can be made very easily. An adaptation of this idea is a man's work apron, with pockets for tools. Aprons made of terry cloth are good for bathing babies. Sewing aprons can have a pin cushion attached, with a tape measure bordering the apron. With so many kinds of aprons, a special booth offers good display possibilities.

For the general needlework booth, consider stoles, which can be made from a two-yard piece of wool jersey, decorated for either dressy or sports occasions. Other popular items include: handbags and evening bags, cloth belts, bean bags of felt or denim, terry cloth stuffed toys, pot holders, guest towels, place mats, laundry bags, felt racks for recipes, book-marks, eyeglass cases, bridge

White House Cards Signed For Judy Rupert

Miss Judy Rupert, of 1403 North Fifth St., Stroudsburg, has something more interesting than another paper napkin to add to her collection. She has received two White House cards: one signed "Minnie Dowd Eisenhower" and the other "Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Judy, who now has 93 paper napkins in her collection, had written asking for a paper napkin from the White House. In a letter on White House stationery, signed by Mary Jane McCaffrey, secretary to Mrs. Eisenhower, Judy learned that because of the thousands of requests from persons with many varied hobbies which can not be filled, there is a rule against supplying any of them.

The letter, however, continues: "With the thought that you might like to have them, I am enclosing herewith two little White House cards, one of which the First Lady has been happy to sign especially for you and the other bearing the President's signature."

The letter was mailed from Denver, Colo.

CARCASS OF A COYOTE. Rare prize shown in picture here was shot by Clarence (Buck) Pipher, Stroudsburg RD 3 near Brushy Mountain reservoir in back of Wooddale this week. Coyotes are becoming increasingly common in area, game official said last night; up to now had been found predominantly in Pocono Lake Preserve wilds area. (Photo by Harry Leida)

Clarence Pipher Kills Coyote In Brushy Mountain Section, First Ever Reported There

"WHERE THE COYOTE howl and the wind blows free" may have once been part of a song designed to evoke yearning for the wide open prairie—but then days may be gone forever.

Main reason for this is a statement yesterday by District Game Protector John Doebbling that Monroe County's coyote population is on the increase.

During recent years, Doebbling noted, several coyotes have been killed ("One or two every year maybe") in this area. Most of these have been brought down in the Pocono Lake Preserve-Pocono Pines area, Doebbling said.

This week there was added proof that coyote are no longer the property of the spacious western territories.

First in Lowlands

A man killed a coyote on Brushy Mountain near Wooddale. It was the first time one of the "prairie wolves" had been reported in the lower regions of the county.

The man who shot the coyote was Clarence Pipher, Stroudsburg RD 3—better known to his friends as "Buck." Pipher is shown holding the animal in an accompanying picture.

Doebbling said that coyote have been on the increase in number in New York state for the past several years. The population in this general region is believed to be increasing correspondingly.

Coyote are a small species of the wolf family. Sometimes known as "prairie wolves," they are especially populous in Western States. They are not generally found in Eastern states.

Mine Section's Chance For New Industry Hinges On Willingness To 'Live With Oil'

LANSFORD, Pa., Nov. 7 (U-P)—Can the men of the Panther Valley, in an area that has based its main livelihood for 164 years on hard coal, turn to a competitive fuel oil for a new way of life? That question has stirred much emotion and also immense dreams of a future pegged on expansion and industrial progress.

The Panther Valley currently is trying to find ways to reduce in-creasing unemployment caused by closings of more and more anthracite mines.

Cartoned Water Program Used Here Studied By Federal C. D.

STROUDSBURG'S USE of paper milk cartons to bring in fresh potable water following the August flood may become the pattern for a national plan for supplying water to stricken areas.

The Federal Civil Defense Administration is cooperating with the EX-CELL-O Corp. of Detroit in a study of Stroudsburg's experience with cartoned water preliminary to establishing a similar program on a national scale.

A first-hand report on the Stroudsburg water operation is being prepared for the Federal CD and the carton manufacturer by Cy Lindroth of The Fred M. Randall advertising agency, who arrived here yesterday from Detroit.

For more than two weeks after the Aug. 18-19 flood, the Lehigh Valley Farmers Cooperative Dairy shipped from its Allentown plant several thousand gallons of pure water in sealed cartons of the type used for their half gallons of milk.

Helped Prevent Disease

This contribution, which was made without compensation, is credited by Red Cross and local Civil Defense officials with playing a major role in preventing an outbreak of disease from polluted water.

The EX-CELL-O Corp. has volunteered to integrate a program utilizing the facilities of the some 2,000 dairies equipped to package water in this manner. It is visualized that under this plan the Allentown-Stroudsburg cooperative effort could be emulated anywhere in the U. S. where disaster affects normal water supplies. Authorities said that the carton system holds many advantages for delivering water quickly and safely to disaster areas.

EX-CELL-O manufactures and leases to dairies throughout the world machines, which form and fill waxed paper cartons of milk.

Every city in the country is in easy reach of one of these dairies and would have an assured source of emergency water under the plan now being formulated, officials said.

Woman Found Fatally Shot At Milford

MILFORD — A 37-year-old mother of two ended her life, police said, with a shot from a .22 caliber revolver at the home of her parents in Dingman Township early yesterday morning.

Milford state police said Mrs. Maxine Campbell, wife of an Army sergeant stationed in Japan, had been living at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Jacobs, until she completed setting up an apartment in Milford for herself and the children.

Troopers said Mrs. Jacobs heard her daughter leave her bedroom and go downstairs early in the morning. Shortly before 6:30, the mother heard a shot, but thought it had been fired by a hunter nearby.

Body Found On Lawn

She later investigated when her daughter was not to be found inside the house, state police said, and discovered her body on the lawn outside.

Dr. Jack Bullock, Pike County coroner, said death was caused by a self-inflicted bullet wound near the right temple.

Mrs. Campbell was the mother of two children, one six years old and one six months old. She was the wife of T/Sgt. James Campbell Jr.

Pfc. Glenn James, Milford state police, barracks, investigated the case.

New Crime Approach

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (U-P)—A new scientific approach to the problem of crime is sought by the Institute for Research on Crime and Delinquency, a new organization. The institute believes many attempts at prevention and rehabilitation fail because of lack of enough of the right kind of basic information.

Although mentally deficient people may often be trained to do many useful things, no amount of training can make them more intelligent.

RILEY

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG High's 7-6 win over Port Jervis last Friday night was a good one, although it proved mighty costly. The Cavaliers lost the services of Co-Captain Gene Plaza for at least one week and maybe for the balance of the current campaign. Plaza is the kind of kid you like to have around in a game such as this Saturday's battle with Nazareth. All that's at stake is the Lehigh-Northampton League championship.

But, on the good side the Cavaliers had a little something to smile about, even though frowns are now outnumbering pleased expressions. The play, both offensively and defensively, of Frank Lupin was outstanding. Although I saw less than half of the game, Lupin's play in the second period was one of the best individual performances this season. His tackling was sure and his running strong.

The play of Ralph Carter and the vastly improved running of Doug Dailey was also eye catching. Jim Brimer's defensive play in the line also played a major role in victory number five for the Cavaliers. The win was a team effort, but the youngsters mentioned above stood out in the rough contest that saw vicious tackling on both sides and some play that one wouldn't rate good for the complexion.

Members of the East Stroudsburg grid machine are to be congratulated for the manner in which they held their tempers under adverse conditions. This composure will put the home team in good standing against Nazareth on Saturday. Dick Gray's passing was its usual solid self against Port Jervis and his receivers turned in another good job. The loss to John Bach that scored the home team's only touchdown was a well executed play, as was the 35-yard aerial from Gray to Plaza that set up the score.

Plaza suffered his knee injury when blocked from the side in the first period. Gray went to the sidelines in the second period to have something removed from his eye. Dick's face took a beating during the game and he exhibited several prominent scratches after the contest. East Stroudsburg's line play was also vastly improved over that displayed at Hellertown, although it will have to be even better against Nazareth on Saturday. Although Port Jervis was a truly good football team, Nazareth will be even better in all departments.

Nazareth got off to a slow start this season, but the Blue Eagles are now flying high. It's a typical Andy Lech coached squad. One that can travel by air or on the land and show plenty of strength in either mode of transportation. But, the Cavaliers, who have a 3-0 record against circuit opposition, can make it number four if they knuckle down to the task immediately. A good week on the practice field will bring about a good game. Prior to each of its two nonleague defeats, East Stroudsburg had a spiritless week on the drill grounds.

The Blue Eagles have a circuit mark of two wins and no defeats, but they certainly haven't been invincible. Nazareth has been well scouted by coach Jack Kist and other members of the staff. If the Cavaliers learn their lesson this week they can become the first team in East Stroudsburg history to win the Lehigh-Northampton League championship.

Right now the 1955 edition of the Cavaliers may feel proud in the fact that they are the first to ever advance this deep into a schedule with a chance to win the title. Even the powerful 1952 squad was sent to the sidelines by Wilson Borough three weeks prior to the Nazareth date, or three weeks prior to Saturday. This is the year that the Cavaliers can make the grade providing they bear down on the practice field this week.

Kist, Reg Neuman, Joe Perfetti, president of the Varsity "E" Club; Kirk Shaw and Dave Fyle witnessed the Duke-Navy grid struggle in Baltimore on Saturday. Members of the East Stroudsburg High football squad were interested spectators in the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College-Cortland tussle on Normal Hill, despite the near freezing temperatures. Bill Peck, assistant grid mentor at Stroudsburg High, also braved the elements to watch Cortland trip ESSTC, 19-13, as did Doug Schoonover, the coach who led East Stroudsburg Junior High to an undefeated football campaign.

Slatington Rolls Over Stroudsburg Junior Varsity, 26-0

Host Crew Scores In Every Period

SLATINGTON — Stroudsburg High's junior varsity football squad completed its season on a losing note here yesterday when Slatington finished on the long end of a 26-0 count. The game was played on the winning contingent's home field.

Stroudsburg presented several scoring threats, but the Mountaineers were never able to cash in on their drives.

The game was played under bad weather conditions as rain fell throughout the contest.

Lewis Rauch was the big gun for Slatington as he scored three times. The hard running back tallied in the first, second and third periods.

Final Touchdown

Dick Skeath banged over the double chalk mark for Slatington's fourth and final TD in the last quarter.

Skeath also plunged for the extra point in the second period and Dick Fritzinger crashed through the line for the 26th point of the contest in the last quarter.

Stroudsburg finished the campaign with a record of three wins, two defeats and a tie.

The Mountaineers defeated Lehigh, Pen Argyl and Palmerton, while bowing to East Stroudsburg and Slatington. Bangor battled the charges of coaches George Metropoulos and Charley Winters to a 12-12 deadlock.

Lakers To Face Warriors

HERSHEY, Nov. 7.—The Minneapolis Lakers, who will oppose the Philadelphia Warriors in the opening of the pro game bill at Hershey Sports Arena on Saturday evening, November 12, will be a "rookie" team.

John Kundla, coach of the Lakers, outlines his hopes and fears in these words:
"At least four new men will figure prominently in our planning. Our big task will be to blend this rookie talent with our veterans, producing the best combinations."

"Rookie teams characteristically make mistakes. I expect ours to be no exception, especially early this season. By mid-winter we hope to have the 'bugs' ironed out."

Road Games

"We are no longer the defending champion, and that's an advantage. It is significant, however, that we open our slate with nine games on the road, and that's bound to be a rugged tour."

"We'll depend on the old hands like Vern Mikkelsen and Whitey Skoog to sustain us through the early stages. The first-year men will gradually assume their part of the load."

"I look for great things from Bob Williams. His Air Force record is convincing. It's possible he'll be the successor to Jim Pollard. "Accurate outside shooting from rookies Mencil and Garmaker will add versatility to our attack. Likewise Ron Feierfeld, who will be our tallest guard since Arnie Fernin."

"Clyde Lovellette still anchors our hopes. He can be the league's best center if he wants. Chances of unseating Fort Wayne and Syracuse depend largely on him."

Bushkill Keglers Roll

THREE MATCHES are set for the Bushkill League at Harmon's Recreation today at 9 p.m. Schedule follows:

Alleys one and two — Stump Jumpers vs. Coon Hunters.
Alleys three and four — Up Valley Boys vs. Busters.

Alleys seven and eight — Little Abners vs. Fox Hunters.

Football Officials Appoint Same Leaders

EASTON — Each of five Eastern Pennsylvania Football Officials Association officers were returned to their post by a majority vote here at Easton High School last night. The action took place during a regular meeting of the organization.

Mike Lisetski, Northampton, was returned as president, while Easton's Ben Everett was voted into the vice president's office once again.

Secretary

Paul Troxel was named secretary-treasurer, while Frank Bechtel and Sam Cooperman were returned to the Executive Board.

Tom Leonard, Al Sterner and Joe Whalen attended from Stroudsburg, while Foust Capobianco, Roseto, and Joe Romano, Bangor, were on hand from their respective communities.

LAST RUN — Evan Reese (11) is shown above enroute to a 20-yard gain for East Stroudsburg High's junior varsity football team in the third quarter against Port Jervis yesterday. A second later the brilliant quarterback was tackled and suffered a broken left leg. He is now a patient at the Monroe County General Hospital. Eastburg went on to score a 13-0 victory. ESSTC Escapes Injury While Bowing To Cortland Teachers

EAST STROUDSBURG State Teachers College emerged from its 19-13 loss at the hands of once beaten Cortland, N.Y., State Teachers College without a serious injury. It was announced last night by Gene Martin, head coach of the Warriors.

"There were some bumps and bruises, but nothing that will cause any difficulty," the veteran mentor reported.

Les Brubaker, fullback, didn't play at all against Cortland because of a shoulder injury. Halfback Guido "Goetz" Dittorice returned to the ESSTC lineup last Saturday for the first time since suffering a separated shoulder against West Chester.

The Warriors didn't workout yesterday because of the rain, but will begin preparation for Saturday's tussle with Cheyney today.

Northampton Uses Strong Start To Sink Bangor, 19-7

BANGOR — Northampton's strong junior varsity grid machine ground out a 19-7 victory over the Bangor yearlings here at rain swept Memorial Park yesterday. It marked the third time this season that the Slayers have tasted defeat.

Northampton lost no time in assuming a comfortable lead as the Konkrete kids scored a pair of first period touchdowns and then added a single six-point in the second round to assume a 19-0 advantage at halftime.

Kuntzman tallied the first touchdown in the opening quarter. Bangor held the upper hand during the second half, but the Slayers couldn't make the margin of superiority enough to turn the tide of battle.

Pass Play

The Slayers scored on a pass from quarterback Frankie Butz to end Earl Walters. The play covered five yards.

Barry Reimer plunged into the endzone for Bangor's seventh point.

Bangor has defeated Palmerton, East Stroudsburg, Hellertown and Nazareth, while bowing to Northampton, Wilson Borough and Catasauqua. The Slayers also played a 12-12 tie with Stroudsburg.

Giovannelli Gains Verdict Over Perez

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Danny Giovannelli, 23, of Brooklyn racked up his second victory in a week tonight by scoring a unanimous decision over Danny Jo Perez of New York in a savagely fought telecast 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena. Giovannelli weighed 150½, Perez 151.

Last Monday night, in the same ring, the handsome Brooklynite whipped Paola Melis. Tonight he subdued the injured Chico Vejar and won impressively.

Referee Mark Conn and Judge Joe Angello scored it 7-3 each. Judge Al Singer made his ballot 6-3-1.

The Associated Press scored it for Giovannelli 5-4-1.

Second Straight
It was Giovannelli's second straight victory over the frailest-looking Perez. Giovannelli won on a sixth round technical knockout two and one-half years ago because of a nasty gash over Perez's left eye.

For a while it appeared the same thing would happen in the return bout.

Perez was cut over the left eye as early as the second round and blood trickled from the wound thereafter.

The cut hampered Perez from the third round on and proved a vital difference as Giovannelli came on to sweep the fourth to ninth rounds from the officials.

Although both were shaken several times by blows that landed flush, there were no knock downs.

Slaughter Beats Collins

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 7.—Charles Slaughter, 134½, of Newark, N. J., won a unanimous decision over George Collins, 137½, of New York in a tame 10-rounder tonight.

Smith Runs For Pair Of Touchdowns

CARL "Corky" Smith slogged through the mud and muck of Memorial Stadium yesterday afternoon to score East Stroudsburg High's junior varsity football squad to two touchdowns and lead a 13-0 verdict over the yearlings from Port Jervis.

The two foes fought through a steady rain and into darkness before the Cavaliers accounted for their fourth victory in seven outings.

Both teams battled on even terms in the first half, with defense and weather conditions putting a damper on offensive thrusts.

East Stroudsburg snapped the scoreless count late in the third stanza when Smith scooped up a fumble and ran 21 yards for the touchdown. Bob Stein added the point from placement.

Second Run
Smith came through once again with only 29 seconds remaining in the ball game as he dashed through the center of the entire Port Jervis squad for 19 yards and the score. A bad pass from center halted any bid for the final extra point.

The Eastburg charges of Coaches Del Davis and Mike Jacobella have taken the measure of Pen Argyl, Lehigh and Stroudsburg in addition to Port Jervis. The Cavaliers have lost to Bangor, Parkland and Wilson Borough.

The victory was very costly for East Stroudsburg as the Cavaliers suffered the loss of quarterback Evan Reese. Reese suffered a broken left leg when tackled after a 20-yard gain in the third quarter. He is now a patient at the Monroe County General Hospital.

Fast Trading At Opening Boosts Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—The stock market today advanced to a new high in its current recovery drive.

It was the market's third consecutive strong rise, but it lacked both the vigor and extent of the previous two.

Some of the steam was taken out of proceedings because New York security markets will be closed tomorrow for the election. Late selling by short-term speculators was evident.

The market opened higher with trading fast. The tape fell behind briefly in reporting the progress of the market right after the opening bell. The pace slackened from then on to the close, which was rather quiet.

Gains Up To Four Points

Prices were up 1 to around 4 points, with a few stocks up a bit more, at the outside.

Steels and motors were mixed and the rise of the oils wasn't unanimous, but most of the rest of the market was higher.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.10 at $173.80. It was up $1.70 on Friday and $2.20 on Thursday. The industrial component gained $1.40, rails were up $1.00, and utilities were up 20 cents.

The list was composed of 1,372 individual issues of which 565 were higher and 369 lower with 26 new highs and 8 new lows for the year. Volume amounted to 2,230,000 shares. That was 200,000 shares under Friday's total.

The American Stock Exchange was mostly higher on volume of 760,000 shares as against 850,000 shares yesterday.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U. S. government issues over the counter were lower.

Gastronomic Doubleheader Has One Purpose: Teasing Consumers To Buy More Dairy Goods

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—This is the month for loyal citizens to celebrate (a) National Cheese Shopper's Month and (b) National Baked-in-Butter Turkey Time.

The gastronomic doubleheader has a single purpose:

To tease us into using more dairy products, and incidentally whittle away at this nation's vexing dairy surpluses.

Way to Use Surplus

A fellow over at the Agriculture Department dropped by today to make an additional point.

"Did you know," he asked, "that if each of us would drink three extra glasses of milk each week we'd have the dairy surplus problem pretty well licked?"

Without waiting for an answer, he had another question:

"What country leads the world in the consumption of milk products?"

That turned out to be a tough one. For it's a country renowned, in fiction at least, for its pubs and its whiskey. Good old Ireland is in first place.

The thought of all those Irishmen standing around swilling milk and nibbling cheese is indeed a switch.

U. S. Is 13th

New Zealand is second among the milk fanatics, Sweden third,

Australia fourth, Canada fifth, and you have to go all the way down to 13th place to find the United States.

The report—prepared by Terrence W. McCabe and Regina Murray of the Agriculture Department—shows that even France, supposed to be a nation of wine drinkers, comes in ahead of this country. Wine glasses and all, France is tenth.

The statistics tell the sad story: The Irish down 1,425 pounds of milk products per capita each year compared with 699 pounds here.

Incidentally, for rich living New Zealand stacks right up near the top. The report shows it leads the world in drinking fluid milk, eats the most butter and is a country of big meat eaters.

How come this country trails so badly in milk consumption? It's prosperous, and its cows are contented. What went wrong?

Competition Cited

The fellow from the Agriculture Department thinks it's partly because soft drink, coffee and beer companies long have bragged about the pleasure-giving qualities of their products, but only recently has anyone bothered to speak up for the cow, with special cheese and turkeys baked in butter months.

"You can't use my name in this," the fellow said, "because each of us at the Agriculture Department thinks his product is the best. But I'm sold on dairy products. This nation consumes 3.6 gallons of ice cream per person, for example, and my wife says I easily make up for 10 people."

"The dairy farmer works harder for his dollar than any other farmer. Cows never take a day off. I was raised in Wisconsin, dairy country, and I know."

Just then we both glanced down and noticed we had carried on our talk while consuming, you'll forgive the expression, coffee. Guiltily we paid our checks and fled.

The average American has $11 in coins, $172 in paper money and $630 in a checking account.

Russia Shows No Evidence Of Seeking Peace

By J. M. Roberts

Associated Press News Analyst

The Soviet Union had made a special effort this year to include the new look, or sweetness and light campaign, in her observation of the 38th anniversary of the Red Revolution.

The annual parade, always looked forward to by Western observers for tips on Russian military advances, was strangely lacking in military emphasis.

Even Defense Minister Zhukov made only routine reference to the necessity for military strength, devoting much of his speech to industrial and political accomplishments and to "peaceful cooperation between states."

Deputy Premier Kaganovich pulled all the stops on the theme that Russians are serious in seeking peace.

Pope Pius Concerned

At one point, however, he let slip what Western diplomats believe is the prime Communist objective in all this buttering-up: the suggestion that the West's "position of strength" interferes with amicable negotiations.

While all this was going on in Moscow, there was no suggestion from Geneva that Russia is prepared to do anything real for peace.

In Rome, Pope Pius expressed an extremely serious view of the international situation—and the Pope, through the Church's agencies everywhere, is one of the world's best-informed men. It seems, he said, "as though night were about to fall upon the world."

That is as ominous an evaluation as has been issued in many a day. Secretary of State Dulles served further notice that the West has not marched up the hill in Europe merely to march down again with its task incomplete. He obtained from Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia agreement that the Eastern European states, now satellites of Moscow, should be free of interference in their internal affairs.

Touchy Subject

It was a touchy subject for Russia, and one of which Dulles could make the most with Tito, who freed Yugoslavia from satellite status in 1948 at great economic and political expense.

Kaganovich said in his anniversary speech that it was not necessary for Russia to export revolution since it was occurring throughout the world because of natural forces. He did not say, however, that Russia would quit exporting it, and Russian officials have reiterated their "defense of the right" of East Germany and the satellites to Communist institutions. Dulles' enlistment of Tito's aid indicates that he intends to make it a more and more active issue.

Russia's talk of cooperation for peace will get a great many more listeners when she starts contracting, instead of continuing her expansionist policy as she is now doing in the Middle East.
